And all the men and women merely players:

They have their exits and their entrances;

And one man in his time plays many parts,

His acts being seven ages.

Mrs. Mary O'Moore Delaney

Dedication

"The inaudible and noiseless foot of Time" has measured out twenty-five years of teaching for Mrs. Mary O'Moore Delaney, Dominican's physical training instructor, dancing teacher and dramatic coach. Twenty-five years at Dominican! ANGELICUS 1964 salutes Mrs. Delaney and voices the congratulations of hundreds of students who once stood in position on the gym floor. There were rhythms of marching and patterns of exercises; there were dance positions and basic steps; there were countless instructions that have echoed and re-echoed around the spacious gymnasium. The music has changed over the years and so has the dance, but the teacher had ever been special, sterling, fine, the "glass wherein the noble youth did dress themselves."

Thrilling First-Nighters, flattering curtain calls of such unforgettable shows as: "The Belle of Barcelona," "Irene," "The Red Mill," "Finian's Rainbow," "Student Prince," "Song of Norway," "Oklahoma," "Music Man," and "The Boy Friend" stir in the memories of once-upon-a-time seniors when they hear of Mrs. Delaney—so gifted, so dedicated, so altogether a priceless part of the fabric that is Dominican.

Celebrating the four-hundredth anniversary of William Shakespeare, ANGELICUS 1964 presents Dominican Commercial, a tiny part of the "world's stage" across which stepped some fifteen hundred students, some fifty faculty members, the lead being played by Mrs. Delaney.

Freshmen learn the Irish jig in preparation for the spring Pageant "Holidays."

During the senior prom at the Hotel Statler, Mrs. Delaney, chaperone, appears with the prom queen and her attendants.

Having played in the Broadway "Irene," Mrs. Delaney took special delight in directing the senior play "Irene."

Mrs. Delaney leads the seniors in the practice of a Latin American dance.

In Tribute

For God and Country
Simple words
And shared by simple men
Two Johns
In star-crossed history
Above our human ken.

Both stood apart
In time and space
Touching God's immensity.
Alert to sounds
Of busy earth
Brushing immortality.

Both trembled on
The mind's frontier
Lauded by mortal glamour.
Both knelt to laws
Of God and man
Amid incessant clamour.

Now both rest silent
Forever still
Amid the world's wild weeping
While others grasp
The fallen torch
And plan a fruitful reaping.

This story shall the good man teach his son;
And Crispin Crispian shall ne'er go by,
From this day to the ending of the world,
But we in it shall be remembered,—
We few, we happy few, we band of brothers;
For he to-day that sheds his blood with me
Shall be my brother; be he ne'er so vile,
This day shall gentle his condition:

Participation in the holy sacrifice of the Mass becomes an impressive reality to Mary McKeegan and her classmates as they act out the Offertory procession.

To develop the Christlike attitude towards God's will, one's neighbor, and all life situations and problems was a major feature of Dominican's RELIGION platform. Looking backward to the Scriptures and forward to Heaven, students made ready to accept the now of Christ's redemptive work. Thus they studied about the Church, the Mystical Christ, which carries forward the work of salvation. The Sacraments, God's saving actions in the present, came in for special scrutiny. Likewise did the Ten Commandments, the guides to genuine happiness, receive careful treatment. The meaning of the state of grace, the concept of sin grew clearer in a frank analysis of teenage life today.

All studied the liturgy and laid plans for intelligent participation in every phase of the Church year. With their goals set in the business world, where pagan principles and crass materialism run rampant, students worked hard at developing the correct sense of Christian values, at expanding those ideas, attitudes, and habits which will equip them to live as Christ would have them live. Imbued with the fresh air streaming from Vatican Council II, they listened, read, and discussed ecumenism. They saw how good example and intelligent dialogue may lead souls to the path of salvation.

A lecture on "What God Is Like" provokes serious thought and discussion for freshmen: Regina Davanzo, Mary Moir, Kathleen Tafuri, Maureen Thorp, Kathleen Haines and Margaret Moylan.

In order to test her oral-aural progress, Betty Baran makes a private recording from the master tape.

From C², DC's language classroom, flows a constant stream of language—Spanish, that is, the modern secretary's second language. The combination—lecture room and laboratory—expedites the play and interplay of all the basic elements in the study of language: teacher, student, tape, record, books, blackboard, testing, and visual aids. Time, all precious forty-five minutes of it, is saved; for with the stretch of one's arm a head set can be reached. With the flick of a switch a program can be had; and since student progress is far from uniform, the simultaneous but private play of different-leveled programs takes care of the listening needs of all.

Teacher's modeling while students watch and listen, is followed by students' listening to and imitating their second teacher, the master tape. Individual student microphones give the teacher the means of listening in privately to each and of correcting each one's specific faults without halting the progress of the class.

"They have been at a great feast of languages, and stolen the scraps."

Elaine Roth, Theresa Musgrave, and Margaret Walsh sharpen their Spanish comprehension powers by submitting to daily listening via earphone.

Students of First Level Spanish imitate the master tape. Individual headsets and microphones enable the teacher to monitor without interrupting the whole class.

Morality, behavior, legislation hold new meanings for Linda Goddard as she thinks about the civil rights revolution.

Classes in Social Studies are really laboratories for future citizens of the United States and of the world.

Students began their high school career with the study of the life of man and how he uses and is used by his environment. This was followed by an understanding of government, especially our American system of representative government and the principles upon which it is based.

In second year, where the emphasis is placed on world history, all were concerned with creating an ecumenical rather than a provincial attitude of mind. Heeding the words of Cardinal Suenens: "Our century has thrown gigantic bridges over rivers, but it does not yet know how to build bridges from people to people," students realized all too clearly that a mature world will only be achieved when the interdependence of each country upon the other is finally accepted.

American history began in the third year where a genuine objectivity brought forth truthful evaluations of America's origins and development. These were followed by a dip into the country's domestic and foreign problems. Two principles of the encyclical, "Pacem en Terris" by Pope John XXIII stood out in sharp relief against the background of world problems: the dignity and rights of the individual must be recognized; error must never be confused with the person who errs. World peace and the continuing conflict with Communism was never allowed to grow dim as all watched the social revolution that gained such rapid momentum. Wide reading in civil rights pushed back the horizons of young minds and made room for the truly Christian duty: to do something about these problems through courage born of love.

In preparation for a history assignment—a discussion on civil rights—Patricia Reilly, Linda Goddard, Barbara Reyman, Katherine Toefield, Rachel Hernandez, Antoinette DeMichele, and Diane DeCario organize their ideas and materials.

"To unpathed waters - undreamed shores."

What makes the works of William Shakespeare so popular despite 400 years? Freshmen: Margaret Doran and Mary Anne O'Connell decide to find out for themselves.

Working on the premise that ENGLISH classes are a prelude to fuller and richer living, Dominican offered her students a program of many splendid things. Ninth year students strove to master the techniques of grammar, correct usage, spelling, and vocabulary. Along with these, they embarked on the pathway of wide reading and correct writing.

Upperclassmen read, reasoned, and reflected on the events, people, and ideas met in their world of reading. Living in an age of mass communications, they had to develop a discerning literary eye if their readings were to contribute to the formation of the true and finished woman of character.

The study of the great literary works, which served as models of expression, led to skill, precision, and ordered thinking in their writing. A new sense of accomplishment was felt when they found themselves using and arranging ideas and sentences logically and effectively.

Poetry contests, speech tourneys, drama skits, creative writing challenges—all helped to develop a mental response and reflective appreciation in the students.

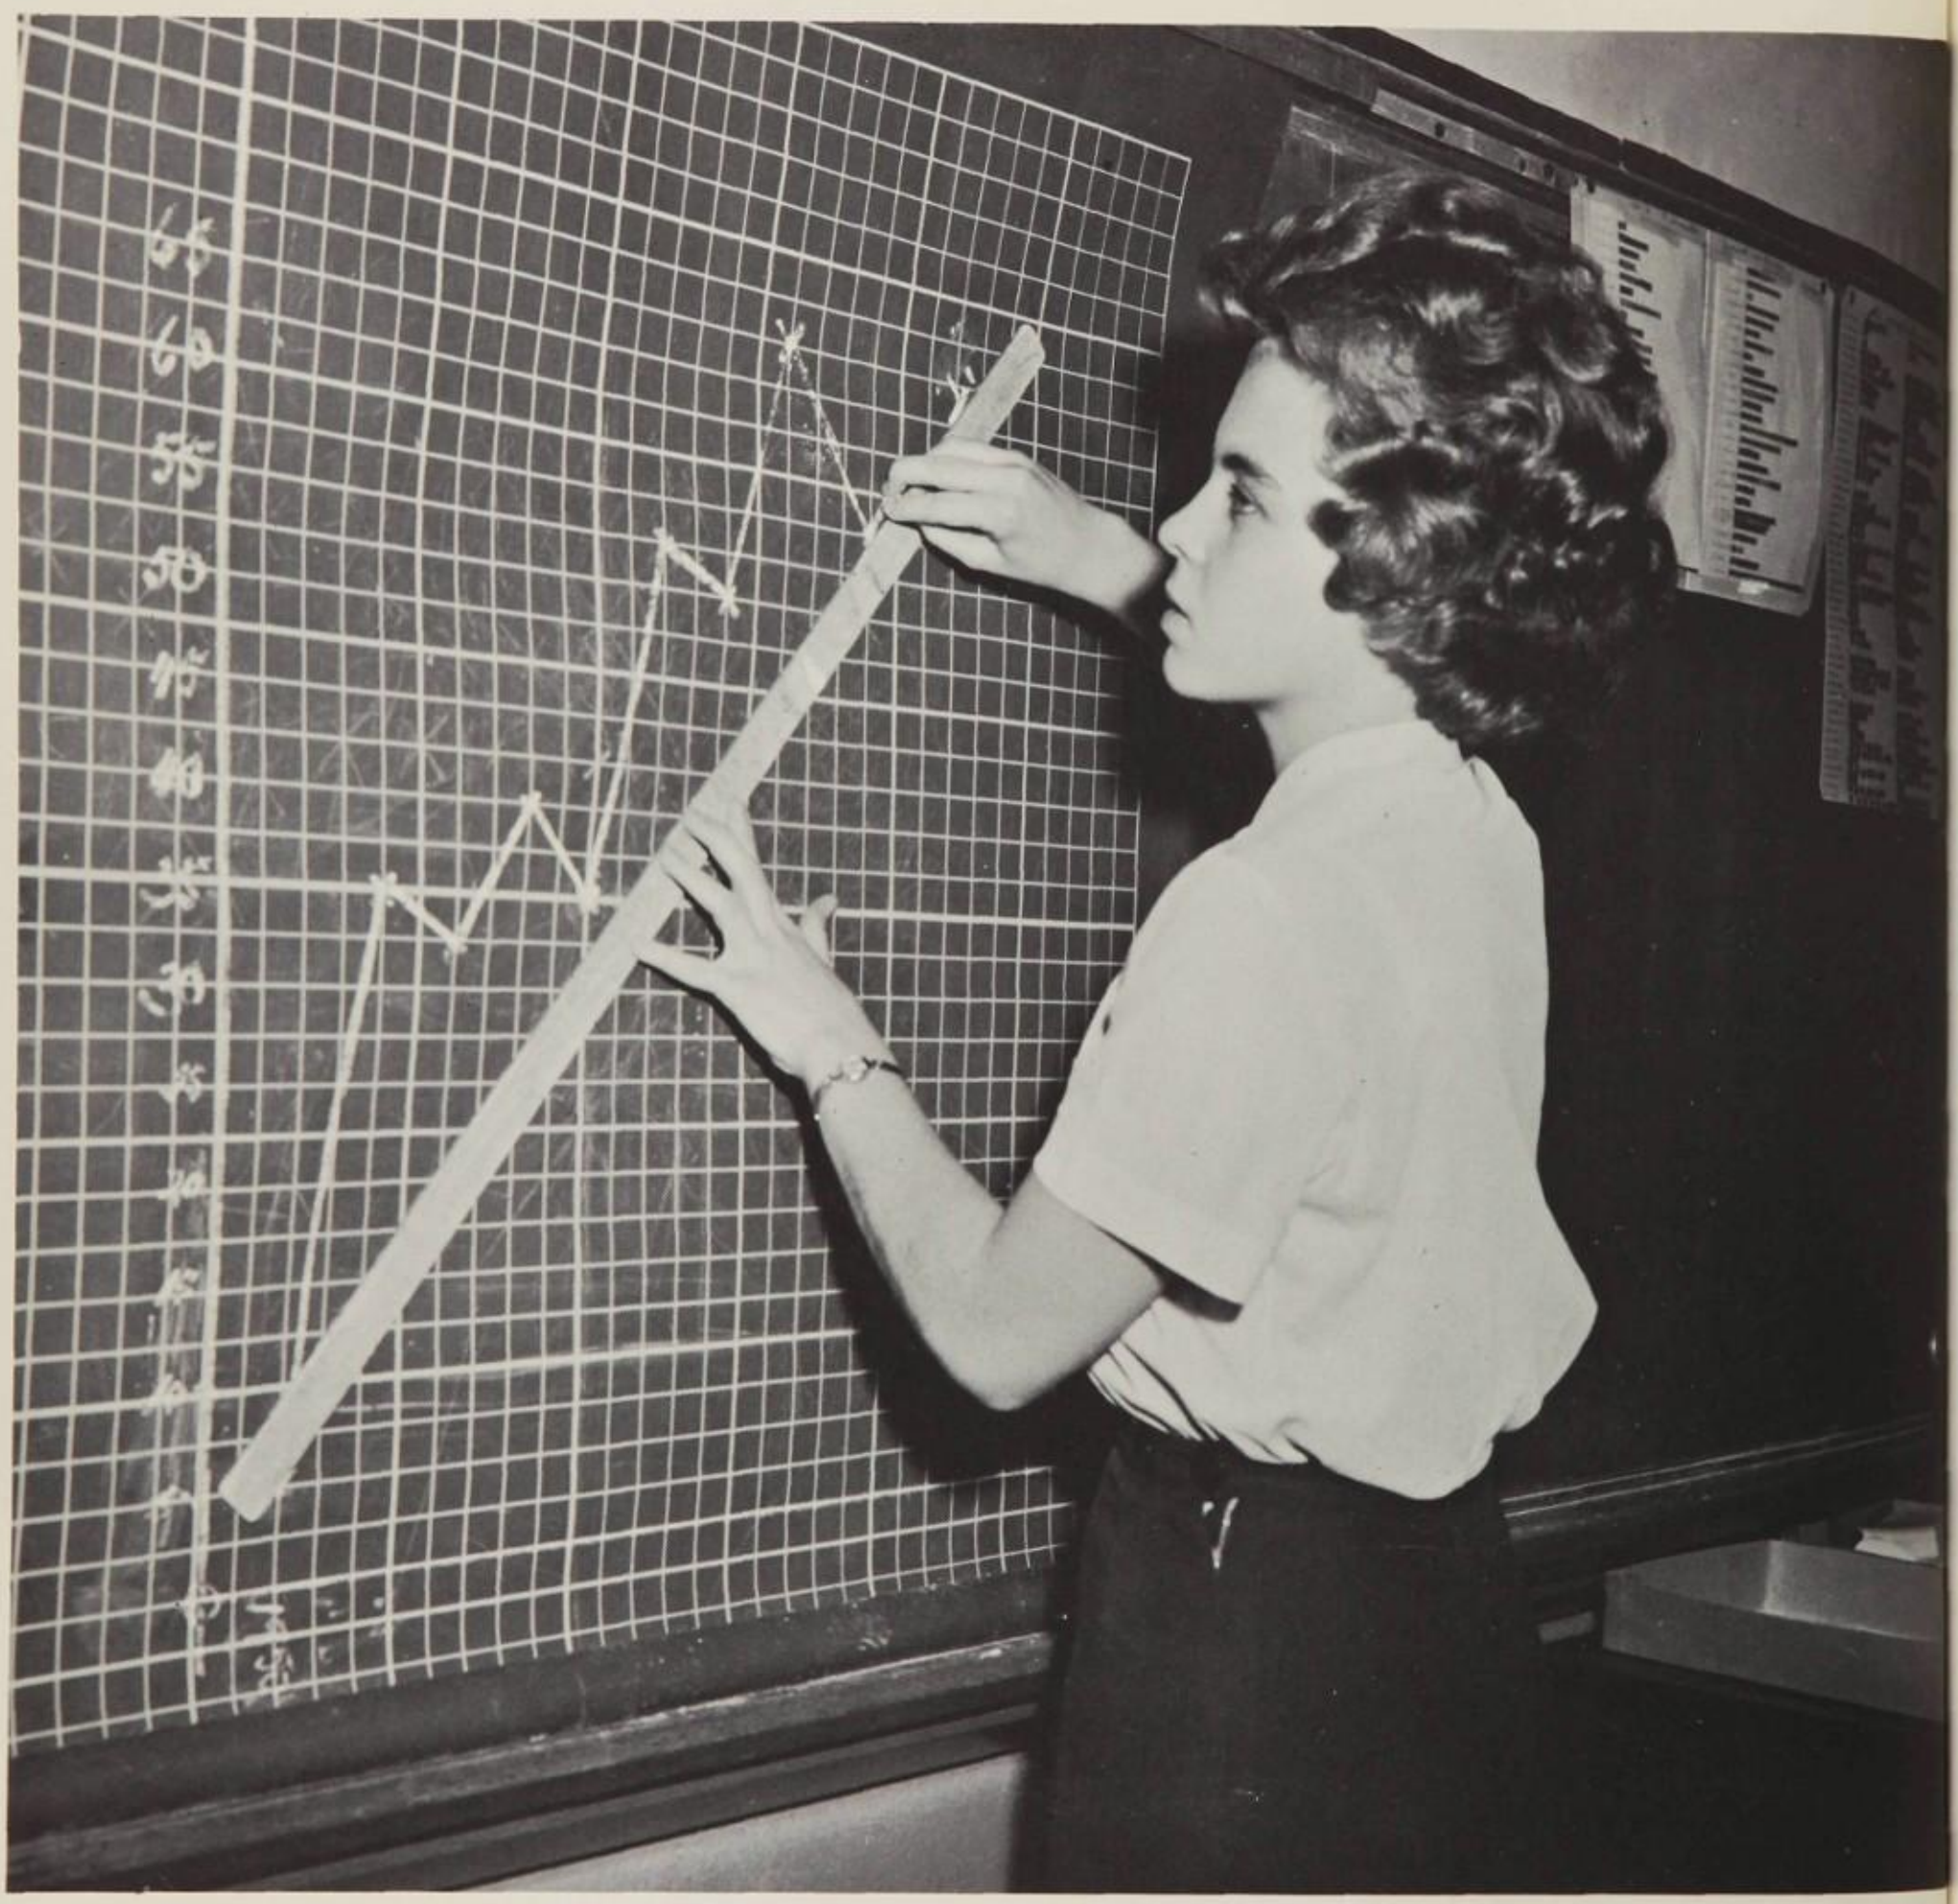
"Every why hath a wherefore."



Mary Jane Allen constructs a line graph illustrating business trends from 1950-1960.

Research in MATHEMATICS, automation, new uses for mathematics scored more than passing recognition in DC's math classes. Algebra students bravely faced the whole wide system of numbers: natural numbers, integers, rational numbers, real numbers, and complex numbers. Sometimes the elements were not numbers at all. With the emphasis touching the structure or pattern of mathematical thought, with repeated experience in both deductive and inductive reasoning, students took in stride each new algebraic experience.

This experience continued in the Tenth Year Math course where the diet remained rich and challenging: basic structure of geometry, relationships among geometric elements; lines, planes, triangles, polygons, circles.

Then there was business mathematics where considerable emphasis was placed on such topics as installment buying, borrowing money, home ownership and cost of public utilities, life insurance, social security and income tax. Business graphs were given an extra look, they being a useful tool in everyday living. Self-reliance, a questioning attitude, and verbal precision all played a part in the development of the student's mathematical maturity.

A teenager stood on the threshold of adulthood and wondered about life, no definition of which pleased her until she took up the study of BIOLOGY. Here she observed and experimented and ventured into the morphological, histological, cytological and genetic aspects of the biotic world. Traditional problems were interpreted in terms of molecular structure from the simple amoeba to the most complex metazoan—man. Theories concerning the gene, the cell, and evolutionary relationships were merged into a single inclusive idea dynamically defining life. Problems of nutrition, conquest of disease, theories of genetics and the study of anatomy pertaining to earthlings and outer-world creatures were investigated in the laboratory as well as in factual studies. The laboratory program stimulated the student's curiosity leading to discoveries concerning molecular structures of elements to the complex structures revealed in the dissection of frogs and fish. Journeys through the botanic and zoological world culminated in an intensive study of God's greatest masterpiece in the living world—man.

As the standard of living mounts ever higher and as automation in offices and industry becomes evermore prevalent, the capable secretary becomes a prime necessity for successful management. To mould this capable secretary, to offer the business world the "finished" student, Dominican presents a program of four years of special training.

Against a backdrop of Christian thought and practice, bolstered by a wide reading program, complexed by the study of history, challenged by math, the DCite pushed ahead with typewriting, stenography, and all the skills of the modern secretary: telephone and telegram techniques, traveling arrangements, bookkeeping, employer's personal taxes, social amenities, mail, the handling of special typing problems, the mechanics of business letters. Surrounding these hovered the ever present, the omnipresent ideal: the cultured young lady—well-groomed, well-spoken, well-balanced.

Sophomores: Irene Jordan and Helen Mancini strive, as do all DCites, to earn a place on the school's typing honor roll.

Trained in the principles of business law, Kathleen Somerville, Louisa Fink and Eileen Schurr will know what to expect and what to do in "living under the law."

To master substantive LAW to the point where one can act as her own legal advisor in money business transactions spells out one of the purposes of the law course. The contents of the program included: common types of contracts, negotiable instruments, insurance, bailments, torts, regulations concerning motor vehicle operation and insurance, property ownership and management, types of business organizations, and courts and their functions. Technicalities abounded, but students persevered realizing that mastery here would ensure successful handling of current, practical situations in the business of living.

In their study of BOOKKEEPING students sought to develop habits of order and clear-thinking that will be useful in any field of activity. The instructions in account keeping, posting, financial statement such as profit and loss statements and balance sheets, petty cash books and pay roll with its accompanying tax problems all helped to answer the need for efficiency and preparedness in the world of business, be it large or small.

"Good counsellors lack no clients."

Business forms such as income tax 1040 will make sense to Mary Bruers, Laura Eiling, and Maxine Braun, who have handled them in their bookkeeping class.

Using things such as hat, needle and thread, and toy dog, members of the law class: Virginia Harmon, Maureen Sherman, Monica Poma, Nancy Russo, Linda Comer, Arlene Yorio (back); Jill Peterka, AnneMarie Huggard, Georgeann Kelly, and Nancy Walsh (front) plan a practical lesson on bailments.

"That strain again!"

Kathleen Terwilliger points out the whole and half tones in the familiar scales to Veronica Diomede.

The number and popularity of operas, concerts, and television programs featuring classical music point up man's continuous search for beauty. The DC student learned early in her high school career that good MUSIC is a step toward the eternal beauty of God. A richly varied group of experiences was her weekly musical diet: instrumental activities by means of which the sounds of the various musical instruments became familiar; special theory and analytical listening wherein she learned to follow a melody line within the texture of a musical composition; history activity and choral activities.

The picture painting and tone painting that is the specialty of the great composers took on new meaning as the student understood their techniques of rhythm, melody, harmony, form, and instrument.

Folk songs were not neglected. Their origins and the stories they tell delighted, intrigued, and enriched the choral experience of all. The music periods ended, but the strains of loveliness will live on and on!

Music appreciation has increased the listening pleasure of Judith Weinberger, Patricia Leone, Theresa Musgrave and Elydia Alomar.

"Friendly counsel cuts off many woes."

Group counselling is Sister Henry Joseph's specialty; Marilyn Kaim, Mary Lou Capone, Barbara Saunders, Linda Rufolo, Jeanne Crawford, and Bernadette Thorn have the opportunity to discuss their plans for the future.

When the problems mounted and the world seemed too unintelligibly complex, the DCite sought assistance in the GUIDANCE room. Growing up, usually a checkered business full of lights and shadows, was no longer a series of major and minor crises when one's plans, ambitions, desires, programs and reactions could be freely discussed with a competent counselor!

Whether to attend college or not, where, how, and all the accompanying facts and figures were given an airing in the guidance room, a popular, busy place. DC's program of class guidance, group guidance, and individual guidance aimed to help youth prepare for life as well as for living, to foster in each more self-understanding and acceptance, self-appraisal and self-direction.

A job, a job! My kingdom for a job! No need to give kingdoms away at Dominican where a placement center rings with calls for DC graduates. Since the demand far exceeds the supply, all seniors are placed by the end of the school year, and many juniors are the lucky possessors of temporary jobs.

"There's a time for all things."

With strength and concerted push-pull effort Linda Napolitano, Jacqueline Tartaro, Nancy Lappin, Lois Burke, Kathleen Terwilliger, Kathleen Phelan, Cynthia Zito, and Patricia Hellsten effect the human pinwheel.

To develop and maintain a desirable level of PHYSICAL FITNESS all DC students participated in certain vigorous physical activity. Exercises leading to muscular strength and endurance guaranteed sustained effort in future work and play without becoming greatly fatigued. Coordination and flexibility, making continued physical effort easier and less tiring, ranked high on the score sheets. Since work, which once supplied necessary exercise, is now done quickly and efficiently by machines, most people have to supply their own exercise. Exercises learned on the gym floor, therefore, became the blueprints for after-school activity.

Likewise did the dancing classes look to the future. Instructed in the art of ballet, tap, folk dancing and ballroom dancing with all its variations, students not only gained poise, rhythm and balance but also a rich storehouse of ideas and ideals to color their future ventures in the world of dancing.

ORGANIZATIONS

"Good name in man and woman, dear my lord,

Is the immediate jewel of their soul:

Who steals my purse steals trash; 'tis something, nothing;

'Twas mine, 'tis his, and has been slave to thousands;

But he that filches from me my good name

Robs me of that which not enriches him,

And makes me poor indeed."

LEGION OF MARY

Sister Louis Marie, O.P.
Librarian, Legion of Mary

Mary Ann Charles, Treasurer, checks names and sections with Claire Doerler.

Legion members, Jean Hofman, Mary Bier, Patricia Sorfin, Ann Lasker, Kathryn Bernat, Esther Schwartz, Marianne McConnell, Elizabeth Neigle, Carolyn McSorley, Roseanne Loterza, and Virginia Deegan, socialize before the meeting begins.

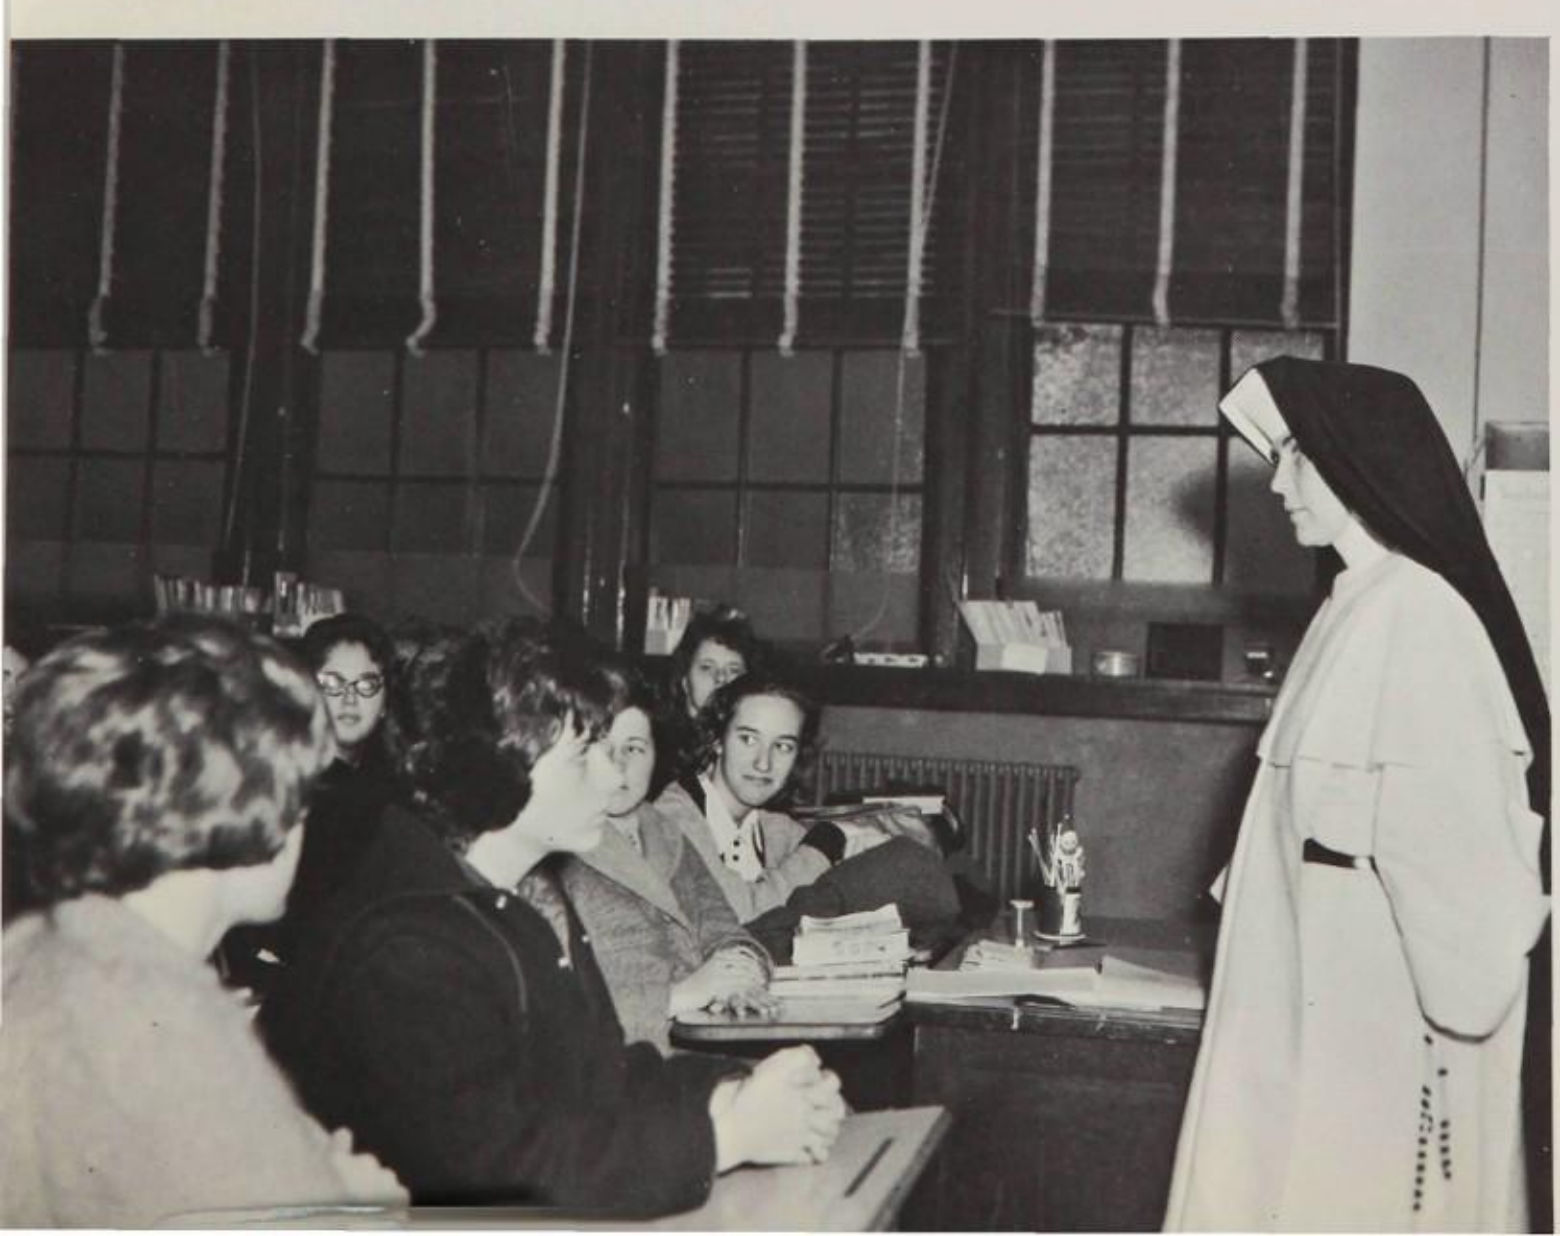
SODALITY OF MARY

Sister Jean Margaret and Margaret Doran pack practical Christmas gifts for the sick poor.

In aspiring to Christocentric living, students found ways and means laid out for them in two organizations: the Sodality of Our Lady and the Legion of Mary. Nearness to Christ came through nearness to Mary in her rosary, litany, Office and hymns.

Doing for others in the name of Christ brought deeper happiness. Clothes for the sick-poor; canned foods for the needy; toys for children; work with the blind; volunteer aid in parish and hospitals. Such activities as these gilded the after-school hours with the precious gold of charity. Sister Louis Marie, O.P. was moderator of the Legion of Mary. Sister Mary Anton, O.P. guided the freshman sodalists; Sister Mary Norbert, O.P. the sophomores, and Sister Jean Margaret, O.P. the senior sodalists.

Maria Morales, Prefect, Mary Crowley, Recording Secretary, and Karen Brandenstein, Corresponding Secretary, put the finishing touches on the tables, set for the children's Christmas party.



Sister Mary Norbert calls for suggestions on ways and means of bringing Christmas joy to others.

MATH CLUB

Curiosity heightened, interests broadened as the explorers in math followed the suggestions of their moderator, Sister Adam Joseph, O.P. Surprises, puzzles, and ideas comprised the weekly diet, students departing each time with a new bag of tricks to show to their friends. Short cuts in computation, the study of statistics, the reading of all kinds of graphs made members aware of the useful role the knowledge of math can play in their daily lives.

To win the bet she has with Linda Coleman (left) president of the Math Club, Linda DiBucci, vice-president, must find 84 triangles in the figure.

Students learn how to interpret set notations.

Stefanie Remis and Maureen Cregan graph inequalities.

ART CLUB

"To business that we love we rise betime,
And go to't with delight."

As the brushes stroked and pens scratched, as ink ran and colors blended, artists thrilled to watch the emergence of their own creations. The weekly art lessons of Sister Anne Regina, O.P. took form and shape and color on the palettes of some sixty student artists. Their work, displayed in the art room, attracted many viewers, thus making the room DC's very own art gallery.

The business of painting is sheer delight to Louise Bykowski.

Artists: Carmen Sweeney, Karen Dorn, and Mary Ann Taylor confer with their master artist, Sister Anne Regina.

Officers: Patricia Cunningham, Treasurer, Karen Brandenstein, Secretary, Roseanne Tavalario, President, and Eileen Sullivan, Vice President, prepare the setting for the Leo Honor Reception.

LEO HONOR SOCIETY

As the scholastic year grew in months and became weighted with knowledge, some students reached for the zenith in mind and heart; in dress and behavior. The reward came in the guise of an invitation to join the LEO HONOR SOCIETY, the special honor society of the Brooklyn Diocese.

Members of this society, directed by Sister Bernadette Marie, O.P. pledged themselves to be faithful to the society's code.

CODE OF THE LEO HONOR SOCIETY

1. To love, obey, and be ever grateful to my parents and those in parental authority over me.
2. To obey school authority, to be regular and punctual in school attendance, to reflect integrity in all my actions, to respect school property, to develop school spirit and leadership to the utmost, and to uphold the principles and teachings of Catholic education.
3. I will endeavor to develop my talents through industry, and thereby take advantage of all opportunities afforded by Church and state to excel in scholarship.
4. I promise to be faithful to American ideals, to respect all civil authority and promote among citizens the Christian Brotherhood of man under the Fatherhood of God.
5. To fulfill my obligations as a practical Catholic, to be a living exemplar of the commandments of God and the precepts of the Church, to be faithful in the reception of the sacraments, to accept without reserve the doctrines, moral standards, and devotional practices of the Catholic Church, and to be an active member in my parish.

Sister Lawrence Joseph meets Kathleen Carney's grandmother, Mrs. Harry Kroell, great-grandmother, Mrs. Elizabeth Gerlach, and mother, Mrs. James Carney, who came to congratulate Kathleen on the occasion of her reception into the Leo Honor.

THE QUILL CLUB

For those with literary interests and talents, Sister Bernadette Marie, O.P. established The Quill. Sometimes it was poetry that filled the after-school hours with challenges. Models were studied and imitated. Then all set out to express their own beautiful thoughts in rhythmical language. Rewards came in the form of acceptance for magazines, for the Anthology of High School Poetry. Some preferred essay writing; others, short stories. Ideas and techniques were shared and discussed and put into practice. The finished products were submitted to the fluorescent lights of constructive criticism, the club's aim being "Excelsior!"

With a change here and a touch-up there, Sister Bernadette Marie shows Patricia Mulleady, Lynore Quartaro and Jane Schlesinger how their humorous poems can be even more humorous.

Random jottings and remarks are in progress here as The Quill members prepare for an essay contest.

CDL

Doctor William Riley, President of the New York CDL, briefs Joanne Keese, Antoinette DeMichele, Anna Sanfilippo, Jane Levitan, Mary Eileen Sullivan, and Edna Gampert on their next responsibilities in the campaign for decent literature.

Citizens for Decent Literature, a nation-wide organization dedicated to fight for decency in literature, moved into Dominican this year under the leadership of Sister Maryaline, O.P. The particular duties of the members of DC are of a letter writing nature, members serving as secretaries to the adult branch of the CDL. Youth proves by this organization that it wants to be decent and upright citizens. Their sword is their pen by means of which they strive to uphold those principles of morality, integrity, and sacrifice, which are the very underpinnings of civilization. The ideal crystallizes as the letters grow and the mimeograph clicks out the materials that are the antibiotics for obscenity and indecency.

JUNIOR RED CROSS

The sick, the poor, the unfortunate held priority spots in the "otherness" program of DC's Junior Red Cross. Time, effort, interest, and even talent were the bartering terms for the giving of self. Sister Mary Erica, O.P. and Sister Maureen, O.P. called the tunes of the selfless melody that was played out each week at the meetings. Crutch bags for the crippled patients, stuffed animals for the sick children, dolls' clothes for little girls, lap quilts of bright colors for the wheel chair patients—such gifts as these took shape and form as the months passed.

Sister Maureen Thomas demonstrates the blanket stitch, first step in "operation-lap robe."

"The play's the thing wherein" to catch the conscience not of the king but of the members of the Dramatic Circle as they gather each week for their meeting. For then, it is that plays are enacted and students have the opportunity to practice the dramatics that their coach, Mrs. Delaney, has so expertly taught them. Principles of acting: voice, diction, gestures, locations, dress; theatrical history and characters, current plays—topics such as these receive due treatment in the course of the year.

The spring play, the Circle's highlight of the school year, was appropriately one of Shakespeare's—A MIDSUMMER NIGHT'S DREAM. This drama taught all one special lesson; how to weigh the rival claims of imaginations and sober vision and decide in favor of the latter while giving the former its due.

In "Sur le Plage" Madame Dubonnet (Geraldine Sullivan) is harassed by Percy Browne (Diane Gorman) and Lord Brockhurst (Linda DiBucci),— the older boyfriends in THE BOYFRIEND.

Dance numbers for the senior play start in the dancing class. Mrs. Delaney is ready to assign Irene Clark, Therese Canning, and Florence Tucker.

In THE BOYFRIEND Maisie (Patricia Reilly) sings "Won't You Charleston With Me" to her boyfriend Bobby Van Husen (Noreen O'Kane).

Dulcie (Carmen Ortiz) boop-a-doops to Lord Brockhurst in "It's Never Too Late To Fall In Love."

Nancy (Cathy Larkin), and Fay (Rosanne Tavalario), two girlfriends in THE BOYFRIEND, demonstrate how "Perfect Young Ladies" should act.

At the Christmas assembly, Dramatic Circle members staged HOLY NIGHT by Sierra.

COMMERCIALITE

Aiming to better their own plans, page editors: Bernadette Doran, Diane Gorman, and Jane Levitan study other publications.

Sister Maureen Kieran aids editor Joanne Ryder in the laying out of THE COMMERCIALITE.

Catherine Raimond, Maureen Shea, Phyllis Kuzneski, Irene Smith, and Linda O'Brien discuss their various feature articles.

ANGELICUS

For the facts, for the details, for the special something that is DC—read the COMMERCIALITE and THE ANGELICUS.

While the page editors and feature editors did their daily news-snooping and packed their quarterly with all "the news that's fit to print," staff members of the yearbook set about publishing the latest history of Dominican in print and photos. Sister Maureen Kieran, O.P. directed the young journalists, holding weekly workshops on newspaper writing.

Sister Mary William, O.P. set the pace for the production of the yearbook. From idea to layout, to picture, to copy, to galley, to proofreading THE ANGELICUS—the road was long and exacting but "thereby hangs a tale"—the story of our school.

Francine Tramontano and Anna Amoroso type captions for the ANGELICUS.

Before leaving for the Columbia Scholastic Press convention, yearbook editors, Mary Ann Bilello, Josephine DeRupo, Michele Carnaval, and Patricia Drees prepare their name tags.

GLEE CLUB

The senior glee club are all ready to entertain at the Christmas assembly.

The glee club sang songs from many lands and many people. Planned and directed by Sister Mary Brendan, O.P., and Mrs. Joseph Mullally the musical program, a twice-a-week affair, offered members hours of delightful listening and singing. Sometimes singing a cappella, at other times accompanied by piano or organ, students raised their voices in folk songs, in selections from operas or oratorios, from musical comedies, from cantatas. As spring drew near and concert time appeared on the horizon, strains from the following grew in popularity: "Adoramus Te," "Hodie Apparuit," "Psalm 150," "By The Bend Of The River," "Beyond The Blue Horizon," "Cindy," and "Kitty Of Colraine."

DOMINICAN CORPS

Dominican Corps spells Dominican school spirit. The wearers of the DC button are often the unsung heroines of the school day. Moments of outward display happen only now and then: such as at an assembly, when the color guard appears, or at parade time, at school functions such as Open School, graduation, school plays and concerts. But the daily posts are the hidden jobs in cafeteria, student rooms and halls. Dominican is proud of its special corps! Sister Henry Joseph, O.P. was the moderator of DC's corps.

The color guard, a special section of the corps, opens the assembly.

Frances Iorio, Barbara Hujanen, and Linda O'Brien keep the dessert lines moving at lunchtime.

Maria Morales, General Manager, and Eileen Shea, Assistant Manager, conduct the meeting.

Kathleen Hettrich, Freshman, captivates her audience with her declamation, "Why?" an oration so suitable to these times of civil rights.

FORENSICS

In addition to the speech activity that is a part of the English course, students may obtain extended training by belonging to one or several sections of the Speech Club: debating, extempore, oratory. The procedures may vary; the goal is constant—toward an articulate Christian youth.

Sister Jeanne Dolores, O.P. led debaters along the straight and narrow path of briefs, evidence, and rebuttals. Sister Mary Grace, O.P. boosted the morale of the young public speaker, who must not only know about things but must know how to say them effectively. Sister Mary Rosalita, O.P. directed the orators, who aimed to give five or six minute speeches in the most acceptable manner and style.

Freshman, Sharon Vollmuth, shares some social security evidence with her debate opponents, Peter Richards and Andrew Festa of McClancy High.

Resolved: "That Social Security Benefits should be extended to include complete medical care!" DC's varsity debaters: Barbara Vettel, Ann Teehan, Justine Chimelewski, and Nancy Barrett arrange their plans for the N.Y.U. debate tourney.

Carol Hromada manipulates the "Viewer," thus giving Carol Oppedisano, Janet McGrath and Patricia Sutter a private tour of Spain.

SPANISH CLUB

By speech, song and dance did the members of the Spanish Club become better acquainted with their Hispanic-American neighbors. Under the guidance of Sister Marie Paulette, O.P., each week's program offered students many opportunities to grow socially, culturally, and linguistically. The motto "Adelante, Siempre Adelante!" hovered in the background of all activities: skits, dialogues, monologues, song fests, folk dances, and group discussions. In an atmosphere of fun and relaxation the foreign tongue, once so strange and rapid, grew familiar and meaningful. Pan American Day, April 14, was achievement day for all club members. On this day the students staged their first public performance: a Spanish Fiesta.

"Aqui se habla mexicana" is the name of the Spanish skit given by Janet Vareles, President, Jeon Loney and Mary Ann Waldron.

Diane Geiser, President, distributes blue carnations, the club's distinctive flower, to Christine Bastedenbeck, Linda Kisling and Irene Reddy.

French Horns: (front) Marilyn Ananicz, Mary Martin; Trombones (middle) Kathleen Spor, Jeanne Rieger; Trumpets: Mary Schworer, Mary Ann Spor, Ada DeMarco; Saxophones: (back) Carolyn Gorman, Geraldine Jackne, Kathleen Moran, Joyce Murphy, Christine Reichert.

Mr. S. Eugene Condosta
Director

Pianists: (front) Kathleen Klees, Carol Saunders; Bass Elizabeth Gannon, Judith Laskowski; Pianists: (back) Jeanne Dutkowsky, Barbara Bencevenga, Annice Morton, Carol Bernhardt, Diane Wilson.

Flutes: (front) Nancy Simek, Maria Limardi, Anne Minei; Clarinets: (middle) Mary Ann Gelato, Mary Nuccio, (back) Joan Schnitzler, Patricia Groom, Kathleen Power, Jill Peterka, Elydia Alomar, Lorraine Smith.

Drums: Helen Mancini, Virginia Ulrich, Lenore Quartaro.

ORCHESTRA

A wish, an interest, an ambition, may start a DCite on her orchestral career. After that comes the patient tutoring of Sister Jean Margaret, O.P., who has the secret formula for "never say die." Once the instrument is familiar and the sounds are forthcoming, the persevering freshman looks forward to the day when she will join the upperclassmen in the orchestra. Daily morning practice, with Sister Mary Brendan, O.P. directing, resulted in assembly programs full of rich tones and splendid harmony. Concert numbers included: "Serenade To Spring," "Some Enchanted Evening," "Echoes of Spring," and "Peter And The Wolf."

Violins: (back) Regina Sulenski, Katherine Hoh, Mary Lange, Priscilla Knight, Elizabeth Mitchell, Caroline Farago, Margaret McCrann; (front) Elizabeth Bunescu, Carolyn Krupa, Lorraine Neuberger, Carol Meyer, Marion Dennison, Maureen Eagan, Ann Palmer.

BAND

Dominican on a Wednesday afternoon was not the place to go for peace and quiet. For woodwind, brass, and percussion instruments held their rendezvous at that time. At the start, the third floor reverberated with a cacophony that sent all non-musicians running to distant places. As the weeks passed, however, and the instructions of Mr. Eugene Condosta were heeded, practice periods became delightful listening periods.

DC's band had its moments of public demonstration when it took part in the parades of the CYO, the American Legion, and the Holy Name Society.

Kathleen Powers, Jill Peterka, Kathleen Spor, and Jeanne Reiger take their band practice seriously.

Priscilla Knight, Lynore Quartaro, and Virginia Ulrick supply the beat for the marching feet.

BATON CLUB

Every day was baton day for some sections of the twirlers. Two moderators: Sister Anne Louise, O.P. and Sister William Marie, O.P., planned, checked, criticized, encouraged. As the practice periods mounted so did the skills. Patterns of routine executed with coordination, rhythm, grace and balance made the performance on CYO Day a pleasure to watch.

The weather was chilly and the road was in repair, but the band played on and so did the twirlers.

PARENTS CLUBS

Mr. Lawrence Falco, President, and Mr. Warren Dennison, Treasurer, plan the agenda of the coming meeting.

The interest, financial aid, and encouragement of the parents aided Dominican to keep pushing ever forward and upward in her efforts to train Catholic youth. At the monthly meetings parents had opportunities to exchange ideas, to compare notes, to discuss problems. The rearing of teens to all the lovely ideals of womanhood in a world so full of evil and violence seems a little less formidable when school and home assist each other.

Fathers have their own informal gathering before the regular meeting begins.

At the monthly meeting Mrs. John Staib pushes one of her fund-raising projects.

Mothers entertained at the Christmas party: (back) Mrs. Thomas Kingston, Mrs. George McNiff, Mrs. Nicholas Corro, Mrs. Arthur Cavanagh; (front) Mrs. John Eagan, Mrs. J. Edward Baumann.

A basket full of goodies for the Sisters was prepared by Mrs. Charles Busch and presented to Sister Henry Joseph and Sister Lawrence Joseph by Mrs. E. Monahan, President of the Mothers Auxiliary.

DOMINICAN

Doctor Helen Y. Kinas tried to keep us healthy and happy.

Sister Mary Damien also helped to solve our health problems.

Mrs. Etta Callahan in her every-day ministerings played many roles: mother, teacher, proctor, counsellor, friend.

Mr. William O'Brien, familiar with all the inner workings of the school building, protected us in all emergencies.

UNDERCLASSMEN

More strange than true: I never may believe
These antick fables, nor these fairy toys.
Lovers and madmen have such seething brains,
Such shaping fantasies, that apprehend
More than cool reason ever comprehends.
The lunatic, the lover and the poet
Are of imagination all compact:
One sees more devils than vast hell can hold,
That is, the madman: the lover, all as frantic,
Sees Helen's beauty in a brow of Egypt:
The poet's eye, in a fine frenzy rolling,
Doth glance from heaven to earth, from earth to heaven;
And as imagination bodies forth
The forms of things unknown, the poet's pen
Turns them to shapes, and gives to airy nothing
A local habitation and a name.

—A Midsummer-Night's Dream,
Act V, Scene I

As the gym period comes to a close Theresa Maruca, Patricia DiNicola, Kathleen Dooley, Helen Ertel, Marianne McConnell, Linda Manuel, and Helen McKernan never want for conversation.

This microscopic exchange leaves Carole Carrano, Angela Dabbraccio, Margaret Colleran, Linda Chisarik, Elizabeth Neigel, Lois Nickel, Patricia Reilly, Linda Salvato, Teresa Pelitsch, and Christine Chodkawski more fully aware of the mysteries of cell life.

In the late afternoon you might find Eileen Gorey, Linda Holzmann, Joan Kiefer, Christine Heeg, Maryann Keller, Barbara Gumprich, Lynn Henry, and Linda Guadagno catching up on their extra reading.

Now that their watches are "A-OK", Patricia Kopf, Maryellen Fortune, Jean Lavello, Joann Giordano, Dorothy Grabowski, and Kathleen Klees are ready to face the day's challenges.

"To die: to sleep;
No more; and by a sleep to say we end
The heart-ache and the thousand natural shocks
That flesh is heir to, 'tis a consummation
Devoutly to be wish'd. To die, to sleep;
To sleep: perchance to dream: ay, there's the rub;
For in that sleep of death what dreams may come
When we have shuffled off this mortal coil,
Must give us pause."

—Hamlet, Act III, Scene I

"Out, out brief candle!
Life's but a walking shadow, a poor player
That struts and frets his hour upon the stage,
And then is heard no more; it is a tale
Told of an idiot, full of sound and fury,
Signifying nothing."

Dear Arlene
I just want to thank you for all the great times
we've had together
& it wasn't for you
& Pete I don't know what we (Stew & me)
would have done. I hope we always remain friends (we don't have much of a choice do we do close)
Love always

Our sincere thanks to all who helped to produce ANGELICUS 1964:

to Sister Lawrence Joseph for her interest and encouragement to the faculty for their fine cooperation to Sister Mary William, our moderator, for her patient assistance and guidance to Sister Mary Aquinas, business manager of the yearbook to Sister Mary Karine for her tribute poem to Sister Mary Rosalita for her photographic services to Mr. Edward Bathmann of Rae Publishing Co. for his professional aid to Jean Sardou Studios for portraits and processing of pictures to Mr. Fred Smith for special photographic assistance to our patrons

to all members of the student body.

"Our revels now are ended . . .

. . . We are such stuff

As dreams are made on, and our little life

Is rounded with sleep."

—The Tempest, Act IV, Scene I
